

FCC Commissioners
The Federal Communications Commission RE: Docket 04-435
445 12th Street, SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear FCC Commissioners ,

I am writing to voice my concerns about the FCC's proposal to relax the restrictions on the use of cell phones on airplanes in flight.

There is no hard evidence that cell phone use doesn't interfere with navigational instruments. The introduction of cell phone use in the cabin will not only increase tension among passengers, it will compromise flight attendants' ability to maintain order in an emergency. Cell phone use could also enable terrorists to coordinate a plan of action more effectively.

Please leave the current rules in effect.

I also believe while it is important to have a cellphone with you in case of emergency , phones should be turned off when in flight to avoid interference. Your plane ride should be a relaxing experience less any unnecessary noise and confusion. For some this is already a nerve racking experience and you don't need the conversations of others to rack your nerves even more expecially since they are not calming you but aggravating you needless chatter.

Sincerely,
